When the Trouble Started.

Slagg had lived all his life in the city. Never had he seen anything in the vegetable line except factory made grass until he decided to spend the summer working on Cousin Hiram's farm. Not knowing much in the way of driving a hoe or a barrow, the new farmhand was put to work whitewashing the outbuildings, while the rest of the staff took to the cornfields. When Cousin Hiram returned to the house at noon Slagg was sitting on the woodpile looking as if he had been crawling on his face through ten acres of sand burrs.

"Give me my money, boss," said he in a mournful voice. "I'm going back to town."

"What have ye been doin' ter yerself?" asked Cousin Hiram, wonderingly sizing up the new hand. "What's happened?"

"I don't know exactly what happened," was the dejected reply of Slagg. "but it started when I tried to white-wash that thing they call a beehive."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Drilling Holes in Steel.

When holes are drilled and then reamed in soft steel bars the metal materially increases in strength, the average limit of elasticity improving 12.3 per cent and the average tensile strength 9.2 per cent. This phenomenon is explained thus: In putting together the parts of a test piece broken under tension it is found that the two ends do not coincide and that, while the edges make a good contact, the central parts do not, thus indicating that the rupture begins at the center and that the edges have a higher tensile resistance than there is along the axis of the bar. Therefore, if several holes are drilled so as not to injure the material too much, as might be the case with punching, the average tensile strength of the section across the holes per unit of metal will be higher than before the holes were drilled, since each hole creates, so to speak, additional edges.—London Mail.

Her Contribution.

A man, a new acquaintance, once told Dr. Joseph Parker of London that he had put a five pound note in the plate instead of the half sovereign he had intended.

"I hope you don't repent of your charity," said the doctor. "Indeed, no," said the guest. "Because," said Parker, "I remember that one of my congregation once did. It was a woman, and she came to the vestry after service one Sunday morning to tell me that a week before she must have put a sovereign in the plate instead of a shilling, because she could not account for the loss otherwise. But she didn't get the change from me," said the doctor, with a smile. "I told her it was too bad, of course, particularly as God would only give her credit for the shilling."

To Transfer Printing.

Anything printed on paper with ordinary printer's ink can be transferred to a clean sheet of paper in the following manner: Take three drams of common yellow soap and dissolve it in one quart of hot water. When cool add one and a half fluid ounces of spirits of turpentine. Put all in a bottle, cork it and shake well together. Take a sponge or soft brush and apply some of the solution to the printed surface. Let it soak for a few minutes. Lay it face down upon the paper on which the transfer is required and press both together evenly between the leaves of a thick book placed under weights. In a time varying from half a minute to several hours, according to the newness of the printed original, it will be transferred in reverse.

A Matter of Small Moment.

A local British official in India wanted military protection against what he considered to be the danger of an Indian rising and traveled all the way to Simla to lay before Lord Kitchener, the commander in chief, the state of affairs in his district and to urge that troops should be sent to support the civil arm. Lord Kitchener declined to do anything of the sort.

"But, my dear sir, do you realize that I may be murdered in my bed one night?" expostulated the official. Kitchener eyed him over for a minute and then said coldly, "Well, what of it?"

Queer Fish.

Some curious fish found in South American waters breathe with lungs as well as gills. During the dry season the fish curls up at the bottom of a burrow, with its tail over its face, and remains there until the rise of water dissolves the plug with which it stops the entrance to the burrow.

His Mistake.

"I understand you entertained a number of people at dinner last night." "That's what I thought," replied Mr. Cumrox, "but my wife says I bored 'em."—Washington Star.
